THE OATH OF LUETGERT

He Formally Swears to His Innocence.

A GRIEVOUS WRONG DONE HIM.

Declares Time Will Demonstrate It—The Jury Reported Disagreement and Was Discharged—The Prisoner's Attorneys Apply For Bail.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Adolph L. Luetgert, accused of boiling his wife to death at midnight in his sausage factory, has made a sworn statement following the disagreement of the jury in his case.

The affidavit was put into writing, in due legal form, and is certified to by a notary.

Ex-Judge William A. Vincent, the leading counsel for the defendant in this celebrated case, the man to whose brains and skill and energy Luetgert, beyond all doubt, owes his great legal victory, gave consent to the affidavit being made.

Luetgert says: "To the public: The result of my trial is a victory for me because of the disagreement of the jury, but I am very much surprised that the jury did not bring in a verdict of not guilty."

"I did not kill my wife and do not know where she is, but I am sure that it is only a question of time until she comes home."

"I did not go upon the witness stand because my lawyer, Judge Vincent, was bitterly opposed to my doing so, and because he advised me it was not necessary."

"I am grateful for the tremendous change of public sentiment in my favor, and time will demonstrate that I am not only an innocent, but a very grievously wronged man."

Luetgert's attorneys today asked that he be put under $15,000 bail, although he entered court prepared to give $20,000 bail. The second trial will not likely occur for some time.

The trial lasted eight weeks and five days. The jurors, after being out 66 hours, announced that they could not agree, and were discharged. In their statement the concluding paragraph said:

"We wish to state that, while the evidence was such that we were unable to agree upon a verdict, one thing we did agree about, and that is the circumstances were such that the police had ample reason to prosecute on the showing without hearing the defense, and we commend them for having done their duty in this case."

After their discharge, it was reluctantly admitted by several of the jurors that the disagreement was brought about by a wide difference of opinion regarding the rings found in the vat, the testimony of the Schimke girls and the testimony of Kenosha witnesses, who positively testified that they saw Mrs. Louise Luetgert alive in the Wisconsin town on May 3, 4 and 5. Juror Harley did not believe the rings found in the middle vat of Luetgert's factory were Mrs. Luetgert's rings. Holabird was inclined to believe the story of the Kenosha witnesses despite the impeaching evidence introduced, and Barber would not believe the strong evidence given by the Schimke sisters.

These were considered the strong features of the trial by those jurors. The other nine jurors reached an agreement on the evidence shortly after noon Tuesday and voted together solidly from that time to the close for conviction. Altogether over 30 ballots were taken, it is said.

It is quite probable that some prosecutions for perjury will result from the Luetgert case. While the state's attorney refuses to affirm or deny this, it is given on first-class authority that the testimony of two of the principal witnesses for the defense will be laid before the grand jury for an investigation. These are William Charles Luetgert's business partner, and Mary Siemmering, the domestic in the Luetgert household.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY CONVENTION

TRAFFIC IN CHINESE GIRLS.

A Report Made to Home Missionary Society of M. E. Church.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.—The second day's session of the Women's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church was devoted entirely to listening to and discussing reports from the heads of the various branches of the work.

That which excited the greatest interest was the report of the bureau for orientals, written by Mrs. L. P. Williams, its secretary, in the course of which it is asserted that the traffic in young girls for vicious purposes is carried on among the Chinese in this country, especially in San Francisco, upon a system which practically amounts to slavery, and that such girls are bought and sold for prices ranging from $100 to $1,500, and that the courts have been known to tacitly sanction the traffic.

Dr. James Lloyd Breck at Nashotah were held. The services were of the simplest character, in keeping with the man whose memory they were intended to honor. Bishop Millsbaugh of Kansas preached the sermon in the chapel, in which he reviewed the lifework of Dr. Breck in the missionary cause.

At the grave Bishop Nicholson repeated the service for the dead, Rev. W. M. Breck, son of the deceased, placing the earth on the casket in the form of a cross. Bishop Tuttle of Missouri spoke at the grave.

MAYOR HARRISON NOT WANTED.

Tammanyites Would Rather Have the Chicagoan Stay at Home—George Has Refused the Services of Noted Speakers. Lining Up For Election Day.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The announcement that Mayor Harrison of Chicago is coming here to speak in behalf of Judge Van Wyck, the Tammany nominee for mayor, is not received with favor even by the Tammany sachems. From the outset the Republicans have been criticized by the Democratic managers and the leaders and newspaper supporters of the Citizens' Union movement for importing campaign speakers, notable among whom were Senators Foraker and Thurston. The acceptance of Mayor Harrison's tender of services is regarded as a stultification of the Democratic position on this subject.

It is believed that Henry George has declined the services of scores of Populists and silver orators, among them Jerry Simpson and Former Senator Peffer, who volunteered to speak for him in New York. George has 300 speakers, nearly all residents of Greater New York.

After some hesitancy the United Democracy, sometimes called the O'Brien Democracy, has decided that its place is with Henry George. More influential, because more numerous, is the Manhattan Democracy, which has elected to support Seth Low. The potency of the 20,000 votes which the Steckler brothers claimed to have organized and controlled was recognized under the Gilyoy-Tammany regime by the appointment of one of the Stecklers to a city judgeship.

A point upon which the Stecklerites—largely drawn from the German element in New York—find themselves as one with the Citizens' Union is the issue of sumptuary legislation, for in his letter of acceptance, which has stood as the platform of the Citizens' Union in this campaign, Mr. Low said of the existing excise statute: "Where the Raines law fails as applied to New York, it fails because it does not take into account the public sentiment of the city. New York, while characteristically an American city, is also as the Germans say a world city. * * * Men of every sort of upbringing must be able to live in such a city happily and naturally of course with due regard to the rights and convictions of others."

In the circumstances it is to be expected that Tammany will suffer by the decision in the Stecklerite councils to stand by Low. To what extent the action of the United Democracy will affect the result is subject to much wider conjecture. Its membership and the loyalty to its leaders of that membership are comparatively unknown quantities. Lately the organization has taken sides with the free silver element in the party and it was foremost in the demand that Henry George declare himself unequivocally in sympathy with the platform adopted at Chicago last year.

A great demonstration in favor of Seth Low's candidacy for mayor took place in Carnegie hall last night. The most remarkable feature of the meeting was the fact that it was not billed as a Citizens', but as a Republican meeting, being held under the auspices of the Republican organization (anti-Platt) of the city of New York. Both Seth Low and Mayor Strong were given enthusiastic welcomes. In calling the meeting to order the chairman addressed the audience as "fellow Republicans" and this evoked cheers.

Major Strong was introduced and could not speak till he had endured another burst of cheering.

Mr. Strong declared that the "Real, genuine Republicans of New York were supporting Seth Low and then quoted Secretary of the Interior Bliss' bitter criticism of Senator Platt a few years ago.

Henry George and ex-Postmaster Dayton spoke at a massmeeting in the borough of Bronx.

Henry George said: "I say nothing against the personal character of any man. If Croker got his palace and race horses honestly, let him remain here. If they were procured by robbery of the people, by the misuse of power he usurped, let him go to England."

"If I have the power, the penitentiary yawns for him. If I have the power, the fate of Boss Tweed and John V. McKane will be his. I make no threats, but a great crime has been committed."

GERMANS WANT SAMOA.

Claim They Have the Same Right as We Have to Hawaii.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—News comes from Hawaii that it has been definitely decided among the Hawaiians opposing annexation that a commission of five men should be sent to Washington to make a determined fight against the ratification of the annexation treaty.

A prominent citizen who has recently returned from Germany states that the Hawaiian annexation question is receiving some consideration among the German people. A number of prominent Germans expressed themselves in favor of the amalgamation of the two republics. In that event they think that Germany should be allowed to take Samoa without interference on the part of the United States.

The Americans have the greatest amount of capital invested in the Hawaiian Islands, and the country is thoroughly Americanized. In Samoa they argued the Germans occupy the same position. The bulk of the money invested there has come from Germany and therefore Germany had as much right to absorb Samoa as Uncle Sam to take Hawaii.

ONE WAS SHOT IN THE LEG.

Five Ran Away While Beautifying the Lawn, but Were Recaptured—Four Jumped From the Wall—Three Eluded Their Pursuers.

MANSFIELD, Oct. 22.—Some of the prisoners of the Ohio reformatory are at large. A number were beautifying the lawn in front of the administration building. Five ran away, but were recaptured at various distances from the city by the guards with bloodhounds. A number of convicts were working on the wall and the forces of the guards was weakened to place men in the chase.

Four of the wall gang crossed the railroad and plunged into the woods. One of the lawn gang, Peter Cattlin, refused to stop when sighted, and was shot in the leg. The four who escaped from the wall were Lee Cutlip, Ed Wheatley, William Brogan and a prisoner named Moore. Guards and bloodhounds are scouring the country for them.

Interesting Addresses and Reports Given at the Session.

INDIANS WERE WISE.

REFORMERS SCORED A WINNING IN THE CHOCTAW ELECTION.

Hard Fighting at the Polls Between the Progressive Tushkahomas and the Unionists—Widespread Corruption of Voters. Red Men Are Great Wire Pullers.

The late election in the Choctaw Nation shows that the Choctaw tribe of Indians is the wisest of the five civilized tribes.

The election was held throughout the Choctaw Nation for national treasurer and members of the national council, and the result of the election shows how the Choctaw people feel toward treating with the United States.

In every county where there were straight Indians who understood the late agreement formulated between the commissions representing the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations and the Dawes commission the Tushkahoma ticket received a majority. The Tushkahoma party embraces those Choctaws who are in favor of treating with the United States and who want to have their own say so in settling their affairs and in determining how long they shall continue their present form of government—a government which they dearly love and cherish. For the past 65 years they have enjoyed all the rights of self government, a privilege which they have exercised as wisely as any of the adjoining states.

The Tushkahoma party was the first political organization of the Indian Territory that openly announced the dangers threatening the five civilized tribes, and in setting forth these dangers to the people it formed what was known as the Tushkahoma platform. This platform advocated an equal division of all the land and property. The party sent out its speakers among the people and showed them that they must change the tenure of the land, and instead of holding the land in common, as it is now done, that it should be and ultimately must be individualized. When it is taken into consideration how bitterly the Indians were opposed to a change and that heretofore it had been dangerous for an Indian to even speak in favor of any kind of a change, it appeared strange to see this Tushkahoma platform advocated openly among the people.

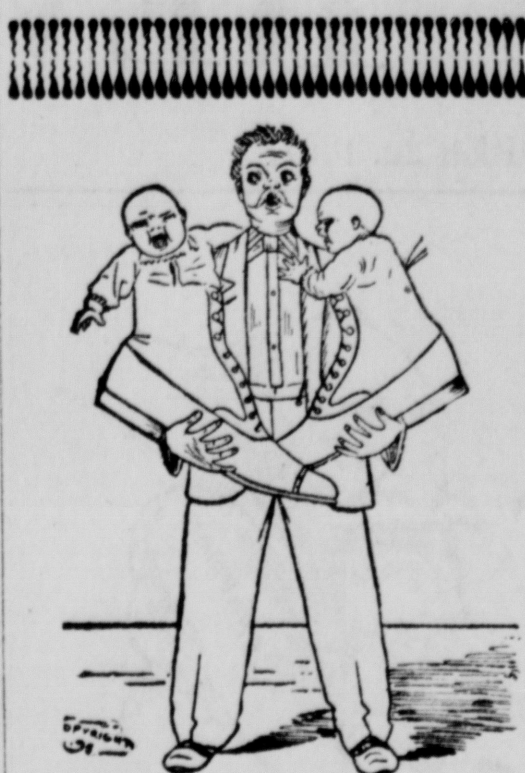

But the leaders of this party fearlessly discussed their platform and met their opponents sober, while the opposition were usually "tanked up" with whisky and used "bluff" instead of argument. The result was the Tushkahoma party elected its governor, while its opponents were lying around drunk. This happened one year ago. Those who are opposed to the agreement call themselves the Choctaw and Chickasaw Union party, and their intention was to defeat the agreement if they secured a majority of the representatives. They made a desperate effort to secure this majority. Where there were negroes they bought them as one would buy merchandise. In Towson, Red River, Kiamitia and Tobucksy, where the negroes were in a majority, the Choctaw and Chickasaw Union party is said to have bought its votes outright.

While the result of this election is still in doubt, yet from the way in which the Union party bought negro voters it would seem that it will elect its candidate. The salary of the national treasurer is but $600 per annum, and as it has, it is said, spent several times this amount to elect its candidate for that office, it is but natural that people should suspect its motives. The Tushkahoma party had no campaign fund, but ran the campaign strictly on its merits, and it has the satisfaction of knowing it has secured a majority of council members despite the "slush" funds used by the opposition, and is yet in a position to protect the Choctaw people from a party whose motto is "Rule or Ruin."

The administration at Washington should lend every possible aid and encouragement to the party which advocates an end to tribal government—the party which made it possible for the Dawes commission to conclude an agreement with the Choctaws and Chickasaws, the only agreement yet concluded with the five civilized tribes. —Kansas City Times.

A Bible For Japan's Emperor.

The American Bible society announces that a large folio Bible in the English language has been specially prepared as a gift to the emperor of Japan and sent to Yokohama. It will be formally presented at the first fitting opportunity after the emperor's return to Tokyo in the autumn. The gift will be made in the name of the American Bible society, the British and Foreign Bible society and the National Bible society of Scotland, which are jointly concerned in the publication and distribution of the Japanese Scriptures. The two agents, the Rev. Henry Loomis and George Braithwaite of Yokohama are to make all the necessary arrangements, including the preparation of a suitable letter to accompany the book. The preparation of this volume was suggested by the favorable reception which the dowager empress of China gave in 1894 when a beautiful Chinese New Testament was given to her in the name of 10,000 Protestant Christian women of China. —Exchange.

WELLSVILLE.

PIGS AND THE BOARD

Health Authorities Have Some More Trouble.

WELLSVILLE'S WICKED BOYS

Will Be Brought Here For Trial on a Trifling Charge—The Athletes Want to Join Powers With Liverpool and Face the World—All the News.

The board of health has struck another wall. This time it is in the shape of a great big pig pen, and it is causing trouble.

Last fall the board notified all parties keeping pigs that the practice must cease, and it did. John Curnan was notified with the others. He promptly moved his pigs up the creek, but discovered there were other pigs in town, and so stated to the board. He was informed that this was so because council had given their owner permission to keep hogs in town. Later the board discovered that John's pens up the creek were polluting the water and ordered him to move. He at once brought his pigs back to town and built a pen near the old saw mill at the mouth of the creek. Again the board notified him to move, but John said if the other fellow was allowed to break the law he too would break it. He has 45 sleek and fat pigs, and says they annoy no one but the board.

Changing Their Plans.

Aughenbaugh having been ordered to quit, the Athletics have elected another captain. It is possible that the team will be consolidated with the Monarchs, of Liverpool, and from the two will be selected a team which will hold its own with any in this vicinity. The matter has been discussed by the managers of the clubs, and it is said that they and a number of players favor the plan.

The Toronto team will be strengthened by men from Steubenville for the game tomorrow.

Brought Back Boys.

Officer Johnson went to Steubenville this morning in order that he might bring back here Bill Whitney and Patty Patterson, against whom there is a charge of petty larceny. The young men have been serving a term in the Jefferson jail, and as the time was about to expire the sheriff telephoned the fact to Wellsville, in order that the punishment might be complete.

Hunting For Men.

The clay department at Patterson's pottery is shut down today, because the management could not find a sufficient number of his men to complete the work on hand. The plant has more orders than it can fill. All departments will begin work next Monday.

Was Very Ill.

Joseph Bunting became suddenly ill while unloading furniture in Third street yesterday. For several hours it was feared he would not recover, but he was better this morning, and will be out in a few days.

The News of Wellsville.

A. G. MacKenzie is home from a trip to Lisbon.

The pressers at the Pioneer are loafing because the supply of clay will not allow them to continue work.

The soap fakirs who have been here for several days believe that prosperity has come to Wellsville. They at least have had their share of it.

Albert Rosenberg, of Youngstown, is here on business.

Charles J. Hall, of McKeesport, is in town.

Several parties who entertained delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention have received letters from their late guests in which they say they have seldom enjoyed events of that character as they did the Wellsville meeting. The arrangements for their entertainment were perfect.

It is said that Wellsville will soon have a scandal of unusual proportions to consider. In fact it has already appeared in some quarters.

John Kirk has decided that he will not come here until the requisition is duly presented, but he is being held in the jail at Rochester until the document arrives. The officers will be ready to go after him next week.

PIGS AND THE BOARD

Health Authorities Have Some More Trouble.

WELLSVILLE'S WICKED BOYS

Will Be Brought Here For Trial on a Trifling Charge—The Athletes Want to Join Powers With Liverpool and Face the World—All the News.

The board of health has struck another wall. This time it is in the shape of a great big pig pen, and it is causing trouble.

Last fall the board notified all parties keeping pigs that the practice must cease, and it did. John Curnan was notified with the others. He promptly moved his pigs up the creek, but discovered there were other pigs in town, and so stated to the board. He was informed that this was so because council had given their owner permission to keep hogs in town. Later the board discovered that John's pens up the creek were polluting the water and ordered him to move. THE men most interested in the New York contest are becoming bitter. A very bad sign, for "whom the gods destroy they first make mad."

Not being able to show that wheat has not increased in price, the Lisbon
Patriot is now discussing clover seed.
Poor Potts, his political race seems at an end.

ABUSE is not argument. The Democratic press can slander Mark Hanna every day in the year, but all of it will not prove that he is anything but the unassuming man of business who is making a very good senator.

GENERAL WARNER is what he always has been, an advocate of free silver who knows little else, and would not yield an iota on that point even though all things else in the Democratic party were at stake. He is a silver Democrat whose Democracy goes no farther than silver.

If any one ever doubted that East Liverpool was for the cause of Cuba, he would have changed his view had he heard the cheer which went up from the multitude crowded into the old opera house last Wednesday night, when Senator Foraker declared the island would be free.

MR. BRYAN, who was defeated for president, and Mr. Campbell, who was defeated for governor, will make a few speeches in a vain endeavor to save the Democratic ticket. O'Myers would likely have hired Democrats who had not been defeated had it been possible, but they were beyond the reach of his search light.

THE injection of new blood into the Democratic section of the campaign through the employment of Mr. Bryan will likely prove another unprofitable venture for Mr. McLean. If he must pay the price usually demanded by the boy orator, and they say that gentleman's scale is regulated by the wealth or poverty of his employer, the expense will be a pretty item to bear without result, for William J. Bryan cannot make votes in Ohio.

SIGNIFICANT.

There are many indications which point to a Republican victory one week from next Tuesday, but none are more significant than the fact that even the Democrats of this county have ceased to claim a majority. They probably see the handwriting on the wall as they never saw it before, and, discouraged by repeated defeats, they give up the contest.
Not one of Democracy's candidates has appeared with any prominence in the campaign and there are hundreds upon hundreds in the county who have never heard their names. Apparently they have realized from the start that the contest could only end in defeat, without trimmings.

Deals Fell Through.

From the present outlook it seems that the ferryboat will not change hands for some time. Every deal that has been on for several weeks has fallen through. It is expected Captain Pusey will start the craft himself after the river rises.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

THIRTEENTH YEAR. NO. 116.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1897.

TWO CENTS

MILITARY NEPOTISM.

THE SONS OF ARMY OFFICERS PREFERRED FOR PROMOTION.

No Vacancy in the Army For This Year's Graduates of the Military Academy. The Promotion of Enlisted Men Said to Be the Cause of This.

For the first time in the history of the United States Military Academy this year's graduating class—an unusually large one—had to be assigned to the army as "additional" second lieutenants for the reason that not a single vacancy existed in that grade at the time of assignment. This condition is the result of very questionable administration on the part of the war department. Under the law graduates of the Military Academy are entitled to all vacancies occurring during the year preceding their graduation. When the vacancies exceed the number of the graduating class, meritorious enlisted men who pass the required examinations are entitled to promotion to the grade of second lieutenant, and, following this class, the president may appoint young men from civil life to the remaining vacancies. The practice has been to promote a limited number of enlisted men every year after the assignment of the graduates and the absorption of those who were assigned as "additional." This was done for the commendable purpose of drawing to the army young men of education and character, possessed of military spirit and who could reach a commission only through service in the ranks. During the past two years, however, an unusually large number of enlisted men were given commissions, no less than 19 having been commissioned since Feb. 1 and most of them since Secretary Alger assumed direction of the war department. The result of this questionable policy is that the entire 67 members of the class of 1897 of the Military Academy had to be assigned as "additional."

There is a special feature connected with the recent appointment of so many enlisted men to the grade of second lieutenant which deserves notice, and which should receive the attention of congress. The law makes young men who have served for two years in the ranks eligible to promotion to the grade of second lieutenant. This period is too short, being only one-half that required of the young man who is appointed to the military academy. In selecting from the ranks for promotion it was the intention of the law that selections should be made from those who exhibit the highest soldierly qualities and who have had the test of two years' actual experience in all the duties and requirements of the ranks. In other words, the men selected as candidates for promotion are supposed to be representative enlisted men and typical soldiers. Instead of this rule prevailing the selections are made in many instances through favoritism and nepotism of the most flagrant character. There is scarcely a white regiment in the army that has not today one or more sons or brothers of officers of the army who have enlisted for a commission and with the absolute certainty of obtaining it if the present abuse is continued in connection with the selection of enlisted men for promotion. These young men, instead of being assigned to real military duty, are, in the first place, sent to companies and regiments chosen by their army relatives and committed to the special care of friendly company officers, and, in the second place, upon reporting for duty they are detailed to perform clerical work, made teachers of post schools or given duty of such character that will furnish them abundant opportunity for study without being subjected to the vicissitudes of ordinary military service. Men are now serving in this way in companies of which their brothers are commissioned officers and sons of colonels are serving in the ranks at the regimental headquarters.

The extent to which this abuse is being carried will be inferred from the fact that of the 19 enlisted men promoted to the grade of second lieutenant since Feb. 1, nine of them, or nearly one-half of the entire number, are sons and brothers of officers in the army. It is true these young men passed the required examination, but the fact must not be overlooked that they were selected for examination mainly because of their relation to officers of the army, after having been extended special privileges for preparation, and that they were examined by boards of officers naturally prejudiced in their favor. It is because of this flagrant favoritism and shameful nepotism imposed upon a secretary of war new to the business and unacquainted with the methods resorted to by "Coburgers" to influence the action of the department that the entire class of 67 men that emerged from West Point last month had to be assigned as "additional" second lieutenants, at an expense to the treasury for salary alone of $96,000 per annum, at least one-third of which is fairly chargeable to the abuse complained of.

On Jan. 1 there were 31 "additional" second lieutenants borne on the army register waiting promotion to the full grade, and several of these are still waiting, yet the secretary of war, unwittingly no doubt, approved the recommendation for the promotion of 19 enlisted men, of whom one-half were sons and brothers of army officers, and in the face of the fact that 67 cadets who had completed the full four years' course of training at West Point would be turned over to him for assignment within three months. Continuance of this abuse is likely to result in the revival of the law which prevailed prior to 1886 and which directed that graduates from the Military Academy for whom there should be no vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant at the time of graduation should be discharged from the military service.

Among persons not well informed upon army matters the belief prevails that its officers have not equal opportunities with other citizens to secure appointments for their sons to the two national academies at West Point and Annapolis because of their divorcement from political affairs. This was true some years ago and was given recognition by the president in selecting candidates "at large" for appointment to the national academies. It is no longer true, however, although the president adheres to the rule of selecting for appointment "at large" only sons of officers of the army and navy. There are no more active and persistent lobbyists and workers for appointments and promotion than military and naval officers, and, so far as the Military Academy is concerned, the records show that in proportion to their numbers army officers are more largely represented at that institution than any other class of citizens. There are numerous instances where army officers have had two sons educated at the Military Academy, appointed from different districts, regardless of the fact that the law imperatively requires that the candidate shall be a bona fide resident of the district from which appointed, and it is quite common for army and navy officers to have a son at each of the academies at the same time. Not long since two boys, sons of army officers, were at the Military Academy from Philadelphia districts, neither of whom was legally entitled to appointment, and one of whom never had his foot in the district to which he was credited, and to which his father was as great a stranger. Such cases are by no means uncommon.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Conditions Favoring Consumption.

In its annual report the state board of health of Massachusetts cites as one of the chief conditions favorable to the production of consumption the continuous and habitual breathing of unrenovated air. Consequently in workshops, factories, schoolrooms, public buildings, halls, churches and the inhabited apartments of dwellings and tenement houses the absence of adequate means of ventilation favors the spread of consumption. Another fact leading in this direction is dampness of soil on which the house stands and dampness of the immediate neighborhood, and the occupancy as living or sleeping apartments of rooms which are constantly damp or are wholly or partly underground undoubtedly has a similar effect. Overcrowding in dwellings, in factories and in workshops, where men and women work for several hours each day, tends to spread the disease, as also density of population generally—in fact, observations in Massachusetts during a period of two recent decades show the deaths from this cause in densely settled districts, as compared with those in sparsely settled districts, of the state stood in the ratio of 1,000 deaths in the former to 727 in the latter. Dust is another important factor in the case, and an interesting point here is that the reports of the registrar general in England for successive years show that fishermen, who are of all classes least exposed to dust inhalation, are comparatively exempt from consumption.—New York Tribune.

Oldest Crocodile in the World.

One of the most interesting specimens in the British Museum is a crocodile more than 2,000 years old. It is a big, well preserved specimen, and on its back there is a whole family of little crocodiles.

Years before the Christian era the Egyptians worshiped crocodiles among their animal deities, and many specimens were kept at great expense in their parks and royal gardens, where they were attended by priests and given all sorts of dainty morsels for food. When these crocodile gods died, they were embalmed and placed in the tombs along with the mummies of other sacred animals. This particular crocodile was prepared by dipping it in wax and pitch, which rendered it hard and shiny, and it lay in one of the pyramids of the century after century, until the Egyptian government dug it out and presented it to the British Museum.—Exchange.

MULLIGAN'S LAST DAY

A TERROR OF THE WEST WHO MADE HIS TAKING OFF MEMORABLE.

He Killed a Friend Who Tried to Persuade Him to Surrender Brought Down by a Bullet From a Militiaman's Rifle. One of Mark Twain's Desperadoes.

"His name was included in the little list of Nevada desperadoes made by Mark Twain in 'Roughing It,'" said the Nevada pioneer. He did not say "Mark Twain," by the way, but "Sam Clemens," the name by which all old Nevadans and Californians knew the famous humorist. The pioneer was talking of men of his time who had died with their boots on, and Billy Mulligan was the character who just now was to the front. Some of the hostile mix ups and shooting matches in which that young Irishman had taken a hand had been related, and now the narrator had come to the day of his taking off.

"Billy Mulligan had run a long string and lasted a good while for a man of his temper and practices, for he was tough out and out," continued the pioneer. "His neck was in danger in the days of the San Francisco vigilance committee, and he ran some narrow chances with the law and lynchers afterward. He was a brave, desperate man, handy with weapons, and would fight 'at the drop of the hat.' But he pulled through all trouble until the time came, which seems sooner or later to befall almost every desperado, when the strain of danger and the effect of constant drinking and excitement got the better of his nerves and judgment. When a desperado gets that way, there are two courses that he may take—quit the country, quit drinking and get to work at an honest calling or stay and get killed. The last was what Mulligan chose, but he kept the business in his own hands and forced the pace to the end.

"It was at Carson City that the end came to Billy Mulligan. The cards had gone against him all night. The liquor he had drunk had made him ugly as he walked out of the Esmeralda saloon one morning. Next door was a laundry, and a Chinaman, ironing clothes, lifted his face to the window just as Mulligan was passing. Without a word the desperado drew his pistol and fired through the glass, blowing the Chinaman's brains out, then went on to the hotel where he was staying, and up stairs to his room in the top story. The door of his room opened near the head of the stairway, and when the sheriff's officers came to arrest him for killing the Chinaman he struck them off with his revolver. They knew it meant certain death to some of them to try to rush up the stairway, and they stopped at the foot to consider. John Coleman, a particular friend of Mulligan, who was with them, tried to persuade him to surrender.

"No use, John," said Mulligan. "I shan't be taken alive. This is my last day, and the game'll end right here. You keep away and don't get mixed up in the trouble."

"Coleman was working along up the stairway as he talked, with the object, perhaps, of getting near enough to the desperado to disarm him.

"Stop where you are, John," said Mulligan. "One step nearer and I'll kill you."

"Coleman made another step forward, and Mulligan shot him through the heart. He permitted the others to take the body away, keeping them covered with his pistols all the time. A crowd gathered in the hotel and the public square which it faced, and plans were discussed for capturing Mulligan, but his character for deadly desperation was such that volunteers were scarce. At last it was decided to call out the militia company and take the desperado in his stronghold by regular assault.

"The troops were mustered in double line in the public square, facing the hotel and waiting the order to advance. Through the window of his room in the third story Mulligan could be seen now and then as he walked to and fro between the stairway and the window, keeping watch against a surprise in either direction. Then, as the face of the desperado appeared once more at the window, one of the soldiers fired with his rifle, killing him instantly. It was an unexpected shot which undoubtedly saved several lives that would almost certainly have been sacrificed in carrying the room by storm.

"Billy Mulligan was a New Yorker by birth and was a typical representative of the old time California 'tough' gambler—a class which got its tone and manners from the New York of the volunteer firemen and 'Dead Rabbit' days. Quick of motion—some of them could pick a fly from the wall with the thumb and finger four times out of five—stern and short spoken except where it was part of their game to be suave, rough and tumble fighters, fashionably dressed, with more of ornaments than southern gamblers often wear and distinguished by heavy black mustaches.

they ran their course in San Francisco, which was headquarters from which they went to the new mining communities, to stay while these flourished or until they were driven out. They had their day—most of them were shot or hanged, or they died in want. Here and there, stranded in some out of the way western community, some decrepit survivor is found of the old gambler desperado class of which Billy Mulligan was a shining example."—New York Sun.

AN ENERGETIC CONSUL.

Relieved the Missionaries and Broke Open the Prison.

Consul James H. Madden, an Illinois man, has come to be known among Americans abroad as a model of his calling. He is located at Smyrna. He has no knowledge of the Turkish language, but is abundantly supplied with energetic English.

Two of his latest diplomatic acts have been just described to the state department people at Washington by appreciative observers. One account comes from missionaries. They had been gathering clothes for sufferers in the interior.

The Turkish officers at the wharf refused to pass charity boxes, demanding information of the exact nature of the contents.

Madden came down, listened to the story of the missionaries, got into a towering rage, swore out of all proportion to the occasion, the religious folks thought, and directed the Turks to put the boxes aboard the steamer. This was done, to the amazement of the bystanders, without remonstrance from the Ottoman officials. The other incident is even more exciting.

An "American citizen," or, as the expression is in that locality, "American citizen for protection and Turk for revenue," had been incarcerated in the Smyrna jail for some petty offense.

Doubtless he was guilty enough, but he was an American citizen. Madden demanded the release of the American. The request was parried. He then demanded a trial of the prisoner or his release. He stormed a little in the language none of them understood and got his native vice consul, Ezra Davee, who has been attached to the consulate since 1833, to notify the town authorities that the consul gave them two days to do something, and then, if the American citizen was still in jail, the consul would come down and take him out.

Accompanied by a stalwart person, armed with a sledge, he visited the prison, broke down the door of the American's cell and let him go free.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

AERONAUT'S DARING ACT.

Dropped With a Parachute 5,000 Feet Above Lake Michigan.

Professor Patrick Deer, high diver, trapeze performer and aeronaut, made a balloon ascension the other day from the deck of a whaleback while en route from Chicago to Milwaukee. The whaleback left Chicago with between 4,000 and 5,000 people on board. Exactly at 11:04 o'clock in the morning, when the steamer was eight miles out in the lake, between Kenosha and Waukegan, the great engines ceased to pulsate and the whaleback came to a standstill. The process of inflation was very rapid. In 13 minutes from the time the vessel stopped the balloon shot upward from the deck, dragging after it the parachute, from which the professor hung by his teeth. The balloon ascended 5,000 feet, when the parachute suddenly parted. It fell 400 feet before it caught the air. A second after it opened the professor reversed his position and hung by his feet. He remained in this attitude until the parachute had sunk to within 200 feet of the surface of the lake, when he dived and struck the water safely. A boat picked him and his balloon up soon after. The balloon, used by Professor Deer is of his own make and is called an "air splitter." It is pointed at both ends and is extremely graceful in the air.—Exchange.

Vaccine to Cure Drunkenness.

Dr. Fred W. D. Evelyn, head of St. Luke's hospital, San Francisco, has just made public the results of 15 years' experiments, by which he claims to have found a certain cure, by inoculation of horse blood, for drunkenness. Dr. Evelyn began his investigations while a surgeon in the British army in Zululand, and he selected a horse as a clean animal with plenty of blood.

His cure is on the same lines as the vaccination remedy, and he asserts that it not only kills the craving for drink, but also relieves the children of a drunkard from hereditary taint. The substance which he gains by injecting alcohol into the blood of a horse he calls equisine. Alcohol is introduced into the horse, and the blood is then drawn off and treated until it is in condition for use.—Exchange.

EASY, ALL!

"Easy, all!" rings out the order, And the muscles cease to strain, And the swing of oars in rowlocks Stops its rhythmical refrain, And the sinking heart beats freely, And the spent breath comes again.

"Easy, all!" Oh, joyous mandate To the strugglers on life's flood, Be it but a passing respite For the brain and strength and blood, Though far distant be the guerdon— Fame or wealth or livelihood!

When the summer sunshine brightens Grimy street and sullen wall, From the strips of azure heaven Seems to come the kindly call: "Rest awhile, ye weary toilers! Drop your oars and easy, all!" —Pall Mall Gazette.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

FROM FAROFF ATTU.

A Little Alaskan Maiden Who Has Come to This Country to Study.

A petite Alaskan maiden of 11 years has just arrived in Chicago and will make this city her home until her education is finished. Her name is Parsha Block and she hails originally from the island of Attu, the end of the Aleutian chain and the most westerly possession of the United States.

While Parsha is under the direct care and charge of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Barber and will make her home with them at 3025 Calumet avenue she has a warm friend and benefactor in the person of Portus B. Weare, who first saw her at her remote island home and was captivated by the winsome manners and keen intelligence of the child. She was accompanied on her long journey by five young misses who had long been her companions in the Jessie Lee mission school conducted at Unalaska island by the Methodist denomination. These former playmates have gone to the famous Carlisle school for Indians in Pennsylvania, where they will pursue their further education. Their names, as written by their friend Parsha, are: Sosipatra Suvaroff, Palagie Tutikoff, Endocia Sediok, Annie Reinikin and Doris Reinikin. Nearly all of them are in their teens. The party was in charge of Miss Mellor, one of the matrons of the mission school.

Little Parsha defines her racial status by the statement that she is a "Russian creole," and those who would court her favor will be careful not to refer to her as an "Aleut." Her father is a Russian and was for some time a trader and station keeper on one of the Aleutian islands. More recently, however, he has followed the sea and has seen little or nothing of his family. The mother is of Siberian and Aleut parentage and is regarded by her neighbors and the members of the mission as one of the most worthy of the native women. Finding herself with a large family of children dependent upon her for support, the mother placed Parsha in the care of the mission when she was an infant. It was a fortunate day for the child when Mr. Weare visited the school and was attracted by her bright ways. There is much of the Japanese in the manner, form, color and general personal appearance of the sprightly little Alaskan miss. Persons unacquainted with her race would invariably believe her to have strayed from the kingdom of the mikado. Her movements are quick, her features inclined to sharpness and her complexion scarcely darker than that of many an American brunette. Few traces of the Indian are discernible either in her appearance or character. Parsha's first impressions of Chicago have already borne fruit in a desire to own and ride a wheel. This wish will be immediately gratified and is accepted by her guardians as a sure token of her easy adaptability to her new surroundings. The bicycle has been ordered, and the first task to which the little stranger from Attu will apply herself is the mastery of the wheel.—Chicago Post.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

THIRTEENTH YEAR. NO. 116.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1897.

TWO CENTS

MILITARY NEPOTISM.

THE SONS OF ARMY OFFICERS PREFERRED FOR PROMOTION.

No Vacancy in the Army For This Year's Graduates of the Military Academy. The Promotion of Enlisted Men Said to Be the Cause of This.

For the first time in the history of the United States Military academy this year's graduating class—an unusually large one—had to be assigned to the army as "additional" second lieutenants for the reason that not a single vacancy existed in that grade at the time of assignment. This condition is the result of very questionable administration on the part of the war department. Under the law graduates of the Military academy are entitled to all vacancies occurring during the year preceding their graduation. When the vacancies exceed the number of the graduating class, meritorious enlisted men who pass the required examinations are entitled to promotion to the grade of second lieutenant, and, following this class, the president may appoint young men from civil life to the remaining vacancies. The practice has been to promote a limited number of enlisted men every year after the assignment of the graduates and the absorption of those who were assigned as "additional." This was done for the commendable purpose of drawing to the army young men of education and character, possessed of military spirit and who could reach a commission only through service in the ranks. During the past two years, however, an unusually large number of enlisted men were given commissions, no less than 19 having been commissioned since Feb. 1 and most of them since Secretary Alger assumed direction of the war department. The result of this questionable policy is that the entire 67 members of the class of 1897 of the Military academy had to be assigned as "additional."

There is a special feature connected with the recent appointment of so many enlisted men to the grade of second lieutenant which deserves notice, and which should receive the attention of congress. The law makes young men who have served for two years in the ranks eligible to promotion to the grade of second lieutenant. This period is too short, being only one-half that required of the young man who is appointed to the military academy. In selecting from the ranks for promotion it was the intention of the law that selections should be made from those who exhibit the highest soldierly qualities and who have had the test of two years' actual experience in all the duties and requirements of the ranks. In other words, the men selected as candidates for promotion are supposed to be representative enlisted men and typical soldiers. Instead of this rule prevailing the selections are made in many instances through favoritism and nepotism of the most flagrant character. There is scarcely a white regiment in the army that has not today one or more sons or brothers of officers of the army who have enlisted for a commission and with the absolute certainty of obtaining it if the present abuse is continued in connection with the selection of enlisted men for promotion. These young men, instead of being assigned to real military duty, are, in the first place, sent to companies and regiments chosen by their army relatives and committed to the special care of friendly company officers, and, in the second place, upon reporting for duty they are detailed to perform clerical work, made teachers of post schools or given duty of such character that will furnish them abundant opportunity for study without being subjected to the vicissitudes of ordinary military service. Men are now serving in this way in companies of which their brothers are commissioned officers and sons of colonels are serving in the ranks at the regimental headquarters.

The extent to which this abuse is being carried will be inferred from the fact that of the 19 enlisted men promoted to the grade of second lieutenant since Feb. 1, nine of them, or nearly one-half of the entire number, are sons and brothers of officers in the army. It is true these young men passed the required examination, but the fact must not be overlooked that they were selected for examination mainly because of their relation to officers of the army, after having been extended special privileges for preparation, and that they were examined by boards of officers naturally prejudiced in their favor. An "American citizen," or, as the expression is in that locality, "American citizen for protection and Turk for revenue," had been incarcerated in the Smyrna jail for some petty offense.

Doubtless he was guilty enough, but he was an American citizen. Madden demanded the release of the American. The request was parried. He then demanded a trial of the prisoner or his release. He stormed a little in the language none of them understood and got his native vice consul, Ezra Davey, who has been attached to the consulate since 1833, to notify the town authorities that the consul gave them two days to do something, and then, if the American citizen was still in jail, the consul would come down and take him out.

Accompanied by a stalwart person, armed with a sledge, he visited the prison, broke down the door of the American's cell and let him go free.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

AERONAUT'S DARING ACT.

Dropped With a Parachute 5,000 Feet Above Lake Michigan.

Professor Patrick Deer, high diver, trapeze performer and aeronaut, made a balloon ascension the other day from the deck of a whaleback while en route from Chicago to Milwaukee. The whaleback left Chicago with between 4,000 and 5,000 people on board. Exactly at 11:04 o'clock in the morning, when the steamer was eight miles out in the lake, between Kenosha and Waukegan, the great engines ceased to pulsate and the whaleback came to a standstill. The process of inflation was very rapid. In 18 minutes from the time the vessel stopped the balloon shot upward from the deck, dragging after it the parachute, from which the professor hung by his teeth. The balloon ascended 5,000 feet, when the parachute suddenly parted. It fell 400 feet before it caught the air. A second after it opened the professor reversed his position and hung by his feet. He remained in this attitude until the parachute had sunk to within 200 feet of the surface of the lake, when he dived and struck the water safely. A boat picked him and his balloon up soon after. The balloon used by Professor Deer is of his own make and is called an "air splitter." It is pointed at both ends and is extremely graceful in the air.—Exchange.

Vaccine to Cure Drunkenness.

Dr. Fred W. D. Evelyn, head of St. Luke's hospital, San Francisco, has just made public the results of 15 years' experiments, by which he claims to have found a certain cure, by inoculation of horse blood, for drunkenness. Dr. Evelyn began his investigations while a surgeon in the British army in Zululand, and he selected a horse as a clean animal with plenty of blood.

His cure is on the same lines as the vaccination remedy, and he asserts that it not only kills the craving for drink, but also relieves the children of a drunkard from hereditary taint. The substance which he gains by injecting alcohol into the blood of a horse he calls equisine. Alcohol is introduced into the horse, and the blood is then drawn off and treated until it is in condition for use.—Exchange.

It is estimated that 2,000,000 tons of pure silver are held in solution by all the waters of the earth.

EASY, ALL!

"Easy, all!" rings out the order, And the muscles cease to strain, And the swing of oars in rowlocks Stops its rhythmic refrain, And the sinking heart beats freely, And the spent breath comes again.

"Easy, all!" Oh, joyous mandate To the strugglers on life's flood, Be it but a passing respite For the brain and strength and blood, Though far distant be the guerdon— Fame or wealth or livelihood!

When the summer sunshine brightens Grimy street and sullen wall, From the strips of azure heaven Seems to come the kindly call: "Rest awhile, ye weary toilers! Drop your oars and easy, all!" —Pall Mall Gazette.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

FROM FAROFF ATTU.

A Little Alaskan Maiden Who Has Come to This Country to Study.

A petite Alaskan maiden of 11 years has just arrived in Chicago and will make this city her home until her education is finished. Her name is Parsha Block and she hails originally from the island of Attu, the end of the Aleutian chain and the most westerly possession of the United States.

While Parsha is under the direct care and charge of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Barber and will make her home with them at 3025 Calumet avenue she has a warm friend and benefactor in the person of Portus B. Weare, who first saw her at her remote island home and was captivated by the winsome manners and keen intelligence of the child. She was accompanied on her long journey by five young misses who had long been her companions in the Jessie Lee mission school conducted at Unalaska island by the Methodist denomination. These former playmates have gone to the famous Carlisle school for Indians in Pennsylvania, where they will pursue their further education. Their names, as written by their friend Parsha, are: Sosipatra Suvaroff, Palagie Tutikoff, Endocia Sedick, Annie Reinikin and Doris Reinikin. Nearly all of them are in their teens. The party was in charge of Miss Mellor, one of the matrons of the mission school.

Little Parsha defines her racial status by the statement that she is a "Russian creole," and those who would court her favor will be careful not to refer to her as an "Aleut." Her father is a Russian and was for some time a trader and station keeper on one of the Aleutian islands. More recently, however, he has followed the sea and has seen little or nothing of his family. The mother is of Siberian and Aleut parentage and is regarded by her neighbors and the members of the mission as one of the most worthy of the native women.

Finding herself with a large family of children dependent upon her for support, the mother placed Parsha in the care of the mission when she was an infant. It was a fortunate day for the child when Mr. Weare visited the school and was attracted by her bright ways.

There is much of the Japanese in the manner, form, color and general personal appearance of the sprightly little Alaskan miss. Persons unacquainted with her race would invariably believe her to have strayed from the kingdom of the mikado. Her movements are quick, her features inclined to sharpness and her complexion scarcely darker than that of many an American brunette. Few traces of the Indian are discernible either in her appearance or character.

Parsha's first impressions of Chicago have already borne fruit in a desire to own and ride a wheel. This wish will be immediately gratified and is accepted by her guardians as a sure token of her easy adaptability to her new surroundings. The bicycle has been ordered, and the first task to which the little stranger from Attu will apply herself is the mastery of the wheel.—Chicago Post

PLEA FOR PURGATORY

There Is a Heaven and There Is a Hell,

BUT ALSO ANOTHER PLACE

Where the Sinner Is Prepared For the Future—As Usual St. Aloysius Was Filled to Overflowing With an Interested Audience.

The audience at St. Aloysius church last night was very large, and the address on "What becomes of our dead" was heard with interest. Father Graham in opening the meeting, said:

"What do we mean by hell? We mean a place or state of punishment that lasts forever.

"A noted priest was once asked where heaven was and said: 'I don't know, and I am not going to bother myself finding out.' The same can be said of hell, but we all agree that hell is supposed to be the bowels of earth. When one enters a mine, the deeper you go the warmer it gets, and you want to get out. This is, I say, a supposition, for all we know, hell may be about us every day. When a man sins he strikes God in the face, and God is so high that the penalty is not great enough to equal the offense. We are only creatures, and God is the creator. If God punishes us for our sins, he punishes us in proportion to the sin.

"The Scriptures are so plain on the subject of hell that it would be useless for me to argue against it. If the life hereafter is everlasting, so are the pangs of hell.

"Christ says it is better for you to go into everlasting life with only one eye or one arm than to go into hell with all of these. In the commandments it says, 'Thou shalt not commit sin.' But who is there among us who does not sin? Whenever there is an inclination to deny hell, think of what Christ did to save you from everlasting punishment."

Father Kress spoke of what becomes of our dead, as follows:

"When a man builds a house he has a right to say what that house shall be. He owns that house, and has a right to say who shall rule over it. The same way with God. He created us and he is our ruler. He has a right to say what becomes of us. He has complete ownership of us, and he can do what he likes with us. It was his will that all angelic creatures entertain eternal life, and he is just as anxious that we here on this earth should do likewise. Heaven is a place of infinite joy and bliss. God has given us a free will, and God is just, and he cannot reward the good as he would the bad and the reverse.

"There is a great way between hell and heaven. Our reason tells us that there should be a place between them, and scriptures tell us that there is a purgatory. Is there a sin in the eyes of man? Our reason tells us there is, and God told us so in the scriptures. There is a difference in sins, and God punishes according to the greatness of the crime that was committed.

"Every sin is an evil, but there are some sins that are not as great in magnitude as others. We offend God by every sin we commit, and he has a law that does for each and every one, no matter how great it may be. The world at large acknowledges there is difference in sins. Our reason tells us the same thing. Venial sin is not the only kind that will keep us out of heaven. By this sin we Catholics believe that when a Catholic dies, and his life here on earth has not been overburdened with sin, his soul enters into what we term purgatory, and remains there until it becomes cleansed enough to enter into the presence of God. When a man has atoned for his sins it does not mean that all his sins are forgiven. This is verified by God's promise to the Jews, who remained in the desert for 40 years, until God opened to them the land of promise. David committed sin, but God said to the young man, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' but afterward says, 'The child that is born to thee shall die.' This is temporal punishment. It is only proper that God should inflict a temporal punishment.

"Let us paint a picture. On this canvas we see a man whose life has been good. When he dies the gates of heaven are opened to him. On the other canvas is a man who has been a criminal and who has followed the ways of the wicked. It is not right that the latter should receive the reward of the former. He deserves punishment. 'But,' I hear some one say, 'the sins of the thief on the cross were forgiven. I suppose my sins will be treated in a like manner.' How does anyone know that all their sins will be forgiven? How much better it would be for our lives to be free from sin.

"Death does not always come on a death bed. To many it comes within a twinkling of an eye. No one knows when the day will come, and if I should ask you now if you were ready to meet God, how many would say 'I am.'"

"The Jews believed in purgatory. It is proven in the inspired book in the Catholic Bible, called the second book of Maccabees. When Abraham Lincoln died the Jews, who attended a well known tabernacle in one of the large cities, had his name placed on the tablet for whom prayers were to be offered up for a certain length of time. They believed that his life was good and that when he died his soul entered purgatory. If you do not believe what the Catholic church teaches about purgatory go back in history as far as you can and you will find that what the church teaches to be true. Deny purgatory and you deny the very existence of God, and you might as well throw the scriptures overboard."

Tonight the introduction will be delivered by Father Kress and the main discourse "Why I Am a Catholic" by Father Graham.

A Note of Warning.

A number of the remedies commonly used for throat trouble have but little merit. The indiscriminate and careless use of some of them is attended with positive danger.

As a prominent example, Chlorate of Potash probably does a great deal more harm than good. Many people, when suffering from sore throat and like troubles, carry crystals or tablets of Chlorate of Potash in their pockets, and eat them almost like candy. Chlorate of Potash has a decided direct action on the kidneys and its unwise use in frequent and large doses irritates these organs and leads to really serious results, especially so in children.

Some may think this is sounding a false and needless alarm but as a single proof we wish to state that we have before us the November, 1894, copy of the Indiana Medical Journal, wherein are reported two deaths clearly due directly to this habit of using Chlorate of Potash with no regard to its powerful properties.

In the past there may have been some excuse for people trifling with dangerous and powerful drugs in the home treatment of Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Croup and Quinsy, as there was a lack of a valuable cure for these diseases. A remedy has recently been placed on sale specially for this class of troubles and it is meeting with a well-merited success, as every prudent mother wants such a remedy at hand. Its name is Tonsiline. It never fails. Your dealer has it in 25 and 50 cent bottles.

NOT VERY MANY BUYERS

Were Spending Money In New York This Week

BUT THE POTTERIES ARE BUSY

Trade Report Shows That Importers Have some Cause For Complaint While Domestic Manufacturers Have All They Can Do.

The New York correspondent of Chicago, Glass and Lamps has the suspicion of grumble in his report for the week. He says:

"Business in general is in a fairly satisfactory condition in this city, though the number of out of town buyers with us has considerably decreased. Every year, at this time, a disturbing element in the shape of politics injuriously affects trade operations, but the unwelcome experience lasts, under ordinary circumstances for only a few weeks. In presidential years business in the great centers of population becomes, to a certain extent, demoralized for many weeks preceding election. Fortunately for manufacturers and merchants, we do not elect a president this fall and, though trade may languish for a brief period, ordinary business conditions will prevail immediately after election. The holiday trade in earthenware, glass, toys and games is beginning to be quite lively. Many country retailers have already obtained supplies in the lines mentioned, but the great majority of small dealers have yet to make their purchases. Wares are certainly plentiful and prices, generally speaking, rule exceedingly low."

Of trade in general the paper says:

"There is no abatement in the demand for pottery nor in the activity at the factories. Decorated ware is in particular request, and the establishments making it are busy night and day. That the improvement in this trade is not expected to be temporary is manifest, from the fact that more new shapes are being got ready for the spring season than ever before at this time, and many important additions to productive capacity are under way or contemplated in various sections. Inquiries are more numerous than for several years before, new business is coming in at an encouraging rate, and the product of the potteries is going into the channels of consumption just as fast as it can be packed and shipped."

BAD BRITISH BREAD.

HEAVY LOAVES NOT THE FAULT OF AMERICAN FLOUR.

We Will Feed England In Spite of English Criticism—The Lancet's Argument Against Foreign Foods Will Not Affect the Sale of Our Wheat.

The task or privilege of feeding England during the next 12 months will fall, as is already widely known, chiefly upon America. The Russian wheat crop is a failure, and export of grain has been forbidden by the czar. The market for the enormous superfluous yield of American cereals is thus provided by one of nature's fortunate compensations, and all concerned are happy or should be. It is curious that just at this moment a new warning or argument against the use of foreign grown food should be put forward by that acknowledged authority upon all questions affecting the physical well being of man, The Lancet. Its assertion amounts to this—that the healthiest food for any people is the product of its local or native soil.

The average ignorant layman is no doubt of the impression that wheat is wheat and beef is beef the world over. Far from it, says a correspondent of The Lancet, whose views are indorsed by the editor of the great organ of medical science in an interesting article. It is, of course, well understood that climatic conditions have a great deal to do with the suitability of food. The appetite for fat in the arctic and for fruit in the tropics affords the commonest example.

"The same principle," the editor of The Lancet points out, "is illustrated even in the comparatively narrow range of climatic conditions in this country. Who has the same inclination to eat a large, underdone, juicy steak in the broiling days of our short summer as in winter? We rather have recourse to salads, fruits, vegetables, and if to meat at all it is in sparing quantity and generally cold. But, as an agricultural correspondent has most ably and pertinently pointed out to us in a recent very interesting communication, the subject may be pushed a step further and considered from a point of view which in its general bearings on the question of food supply is of unquestionable importance. As he has observed, the same plant varies in its feeding properties when grown at a different altitude or on a particular soil or in a different climate. In other words, the nutritive value of a plant or its fruit, be it seed or leaf, is influenced by soil and climate. Herbage composed of grasses and clovers—i. e., pasture—has a marked influence upon the health, development and early maturity of sheep and cattle according to geographical position and geological character of the soil. Thus 'storeland' and 'feeding land' are terms used to express the relative character of the soil, and, as our correspondent, who is a farmer, points out, these varying conditions have a well known influence in altering or modifying the type and character of breed or pedigree. Is it a design in nature, he asks, that plants growing in any particular country shall be more suitable food for animals in that particular country than foreign food or that grown in a different country? As an illustration, linseed or flaxseed produced in one country is full of oil, and in another the proportion of oil is distinctly less. A sample of seed in one country, again, is rich in mucus, while in another it contains very little mucilage, the difference in this respect in Russia, India and English seeds being considerable. Again, he asks, does Assam tea afford a more healthful beverage to the Chinaman than Indian tea? Yet the character of the two decoctions made from these respective teas is quite different.

"To come nearer home and to touch upon the economic side of the question as closely affecting our own agricultural interests, is English wheat made into bread a better food for the people in this country than bread made from foreign flour? The baker selects foreign flour because the resulting loaf is lighter, and the flour will take up more water, and a sack will yield a greater number of loaves than an English sack. There could hardly be opened up for discussion a more interesting phase of the subject, and our correspondent has written very pertinently upon a very important question. It is just possible, on studying and reflecting upon the issues he has raised, that another rational and powerful argument in favor of the consumption of home grown food may be found."

The Lancet's argument may be "rational and powerful," but I do not believe it will diminish the sale of American wheat in England by a single bushel during the coming autumn and winter. The point incidentally brought out that foreign flour will yield more bread, weight for weight, than English flour is quite potent enough to decide the question in every bakery in England. If The Lancet would devote itself to an agitation of the question how to make bread with any flour, it might accomplish a great and glorious reform in this baker ridden country. If a more discouraging, unappetizing object can be produced as a product of the culinary art than the English "household loaf," as it is called, I have failed to discover it.—London Cor. New York Sun.

NOT VERY MANY BUYERS

Were Spending Money In New York This Week

BUT THE POTTERIES ARE BUSY

Trade Report Shows That Importers Have some Cause For Complaint While Domestic Manufacturers Have All They Can Do.

The New York correspondent of China, Glass and Lamps has the suspicion of grumble in his report for the week. He says:

"Business in general is in a fairly satisfactory condition in this city, though the number of out of town buyers with us has considerably decreased. Every year, at this time, a disturbing element in the shape of politics injuriously affects trade operations, but the unwelcome experience lasts, under ordinary circumstances for only a few weeks. In presidential years business in the great centers of population becomes, to a certain extent, demoralized for many weeks preceding election. Fortunately for manufacturers and merchants, we do not elect a president this fall and, though trade may languish for a brief period, ordinary business conditions will prevail immediately after election. The holiday trade in earthenware, glass, toys and games is beginning to be quite lively. Many country retailers have already obtained supplies in the lines mentioned, but the great majority of small dealers have yet to make their purchases. Wares are certainly plentiful and prices, generally speaking, rule exceedingly low."

Of trade in general the paper says:

"There is no abatement in the demand for pottery nor in the activity at the factories. Decorated ware is in particular request, and the establishments making it are busy night and day. POLITICS IN THE WEST

When Public Life Was an Interesting Experience.

TRAPPED WITH MARK TWAIN

Colonel Si Hawkins Is a Familiar Figure to Those Who Know and Appreciate the Great Humorist—He Is Now a Business Man With Money.

Although East Liverpool did not know it, the city has this week entertained a man who was an interesting figure in Nevada politics when Nevada politics made up a decidedly interesting institution. His name is Colonel Si Hawkins, and he was for years the friend and companion of Mark Twain.

Colonel Hawkins lived in Virginia City when it was in its glory, and took no little part in some of the most stirring scenes of that stirring time. In company with Mark Twain he roughed it all over the west, and many of their experiences have been embodied in the light, breezy Roughing It, so well known to those who still appreciate the humor of a man who is always humorous. When Nevada became a state Colonel Hawkins was elected to the legislature, and was among the members when the first United States senator was elected. He made a name for himself in that body, and when he left the state to return to Ohio he carried with him the assurance that his name would not be forgotten.

Colonel Hawkins now resides at McConnellsville where he is esteemed and respected. He is a staunch Republican, and although his hair is white as snow is as vigorous as many a younger man. He was here on important business, the nature of which was not given out.

SPECIAL SCENERY

Will Be Used in Shakespear's Productions by Mr. Spencer.

Mr. Elihu R. Spencer, the young tragedian, who is always a welcome visitor here, will appear at the Grand Opera House tonight. He will present "Romeo and Juliet" which is considered one of his strongest as well as one of his most popular characterizations. The company supporting him is one of the largest and most complete organizations of the kind traveling. It is composed of only experienced players capable of giving an adequate and commendable interpretation of any drama in Mr. Spencer's repertoire.

One thing that is always noticeable in Mr. Spencer's productions is the scenic environment. Proper and adequate staging, of classic plays certainly is worthy of commendation, and there is no actor who gives this necessary accessory more thoughtful and careful attention in every detail than Mr. Spencer. It serves to show that he has a high appreciation of art in every form on the stage. Older stars in classic dramas are satisfied with ordinary scenic dressing, but Mr. Spencer seeks perfection in this detail of staging a play.

We have a private kindergarten, which Miss Cassidy has charge of. After awhile we may have a free kindergarten. We want to do all the good possible to those who come under our care. I have seen the young women at the home in regard to what was published in the Crisis. They deny having it inserted, and I believe it.

ON THE GRAND BANKS.

How the Cod and Halibut Are Taken by the Small Vessels.

Gustav Kobbe writes an article entitled "On the Grand Banks and Elsewhere" for St. Nicholas. Mr. Kobbe says:

The trawlers are generally found on the Grand banks, the hand liners on the western bank and Quiro. These hand lines are smaller vessels with fewer dories, and the men fish with hand lines, one man and two lines to a dory. The hand liner sits in the middle of his dory, with a compartment in its stern and another in its bow for his catch. When you see the bow sticking far up in the air, you know the fisherman has his stern load. Then, as fish after fish flashes into the other compartment, the bow settles, and when the dory is on an even keel the hand liner pulls back to the vessel.

The trawlers bait with fresh herring, mackerel and squid, the hand liners with salt clams. The catch of both is split and salted, and the vessel has a full "fare," or catch, when she has "wet her salt"—that is, used up all her salt—and is full of fish. A trawler's voyage lasts about 8 weeks, a hand liner's 11.

A trawler's crew receives no wages, but fishes on shares. First the captain gets a percentage; of the remainder, one half goes to the vessel, which "finds"—that is, supplies the gear, stores, salt and half the bait—and the other half to the captain and crew in equal shares, which run from $110 to $150 and even to $250.

But among the hand liners each man is paid according to what he catches, the "fare" from each dory being weighed as it is taken aboard. This stimulates competition. There is judgment in knowing where to fish or how long to stay over a certain spot, and even the quickness with which a line is hauled in will make a perceptible difference at the end of a day's fishing. It means something to be "high line," as they call the best fisherman, at the end of a voyage, and those who win this distinction time and again, as some do, become known as "killers" and "big fishermen."

The main catch on the banks is cod and halibut. There is also a fleet of small American vessels which pursue the merry swordfish. Swordfishing is good sport—whaling on a small scale. A man, dart in hand, stands in the vessel's bow, supported by a semicircular iron brace. When near enough to the fish, he lets fly the dart. A swordfish may weigh 350 pounds. One can tow a dory a mile, and a piece of the sword has been found driven through the bottom of a pilotboat.

How Diamonds Are Formed.

Professor (Sir William) Crookes in a recent lecture expressed his opinion that Moissan, in his experiments in diamond making, has thrown much light on the way in which nature has formed these gems. In the artificial process pure iron was packed in a crucible with pure charcoal from sugar. In the electric current the iron melts rapidly and saturates itself with carbon. When heated above 4,000 degrees, the current is stopped and the crucible plunged in cold water and held until it diminishes to a dull red heat. The sudden cooling solidifies the outer layer of iron. The expansion of the inner liquid in solidifying produces an enormous pressure, and the dissolved carbon separates in a crystalline form—diamond. The metallic mass is then attacked with solvents to liberate the grains within.

Professor Crookes pointed out that the diamond of the chemist and that of the mine are akin as to origin, and that the diamond genesis must have taken place at great depths under enormous pressure. It has been proved that iron at high temperature and under heavy pressure, conditions existent at great depths below the earth's surface, is the long sought solvent for carbon.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Why, I do everything for 'em—provide 'em with a home, plenty to eat, and so forth. What more can they expect?"—Harper's Bazar.

ON THE GRAND BANKS.

How the Cod and Halibut Are Taken by the Small Vessels.

Gustav Kobbe writes an article entitled "On the Grand Banks and Elsewhere" for St. Nicholas. Mr. Kobbe says:

The trawlers are generally found on the Grand Banks, the hand liners on the western bank and Quiro. These hand lines are smaller vessels with fewer dories, and the men fish with hand lines, one man and two lines to a dory. The hand liner sits in the middle of his dory, with a compartment in its stern and another in its bow for his catch. When you see the bow sticking far up in the air, you know the fisherman has his stern load. Then, as fish after fish flashes into the other compartment, the bow settles, and when the dory is on an even keel the hand liner pulls back to the vessel.

The trawlers bait with fresh herring, mackerel and squid, the hand liners with salt clams. The catch of both is split and salted, and the vessel has a full "fare," or catch, when she has "wet her salt"—that is, used up all her salt—and is full of fish. A trawler's voyage lasts about 8 weeks, a hand liner's 11.

A trawler's crew receives no wages, but fishes on shares. First the captain gets a percentage; of the remainder, one half goes to the vessel, which "finds"—that is, supplies the gear, stores, salt and half the bait—and the other half to the captain and crew in equal shares, which run from $110 to $150 and even to $250.

But among the hand liners each man is paid according to what he catches, the "fare" from each dory being weighed as it is taken aboard. This stimulates competition. There is judgment in knowing where to fish or how long to stay over a certain spot, and even the quickness with which a line is hauled in will make a perceptible difference at the end of a day's fishing. It means something to be "high line," as they call the best fisherman, at the end of a voyage, and those who win this distinction time and again, as some do, become known as "killers" and "big fishermen."

The main catch on the banks is cod and halibut. There is also a fleet of small American vessels which pursue the merry swordfish. Swordfishing is good sport—whaling on a small scale. A man, dart in hand, stands in the vessel's bow, supported by a semicircular iron brace. When near enough to the fish, he lets fly the dart. A swordfish may weigh 350 pounds. One can tow a dory a mile, and a piece of the sword has been found driven through the bottom of a pilotboat.

How Diamonds Are Formed.

Professor (Sir William) Crookes in a recent lecture expressed his opinion that Moissan, in his experiments in diamond making, has thrown much light on the way in which nature has formed these gems. In the artificial process pure iron was packed in a crucible with pure charcoal from sugar. In the electric current the iron melts rapidly and saturates itself with carbon. When heated above 4,000 degrees, the current is stopped and the crucible plunged in cold water and held until it diminishes to a dull red heat. The sudden cooling solidifies the outer layer of iron. The expansion of the inner liquid in solidifying produces an enormous pressure, and the dissolved carbon separates in a crystalline form—diamond. The metallic mass is then attacked with solvents to liberate the grains within.

Professor Crookes pointed out that the diamond of the chemist and that of the mine are akin as to origin, and that the diamond genesis must have taken place at great depths under enormous pressure. It has been proved that iron at high temperature and under heavy pressure, conditions existent at great depths below the earth's surface, is the long sought solvent for carbon.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"What do I do for 'em?" said Parker.

"Why, I do everything for 'em—provide 'em with a home, plenty to eat, and so forth. What more can they expect?"—Harper's Bazar.

General Warner Has Changed Only a Little.

TALKED ABOUT THE COURTS

He Had Little to Say About the Ohio Campaign, but the Silver Question Came In For Its Usual Share of Care and Attention — Doctor Ikert Also Made a Speech.

The Democratic meeting at the Grand Opera House last evening was attended by at least 250 people, but a larger part of them went home before the speaker had finished his address. In the rear of the stage was a large flag which had been hung with the Jack turned the wrong way.

The meeting was called to order by R. Meakin, who read a list of 20 vice presidents who were asked to take their seats on the platform, but only seven responded. It was then explained that a portion of the presidents had gone to the train to meet the orator of the evening.

Dr. G. P. Ikert, as chairman of the meeting, commenced his address. He explained why General Warner was not present, and said he was not feeling well himself. He spoke of government by injunction, and said it was the fruition of Republicanism, and if not frowned down would be the ruin of the people. Newspaper clippings were read to show that Marcus Hanna was not a friend of labor, and one of the vice presidents went to sleep. It was stated that tariff had nothing to do with the rise in the price of sheep, but it was simply because people had discovered mutton was good to eat, and farmers knew sheep were good to eat the weeds on their farms. He said he did not believe in strikes, and the way to get redress was at the ballot box, when workingmen let their "silent ballots fall like snowflakes on the sod." Our next senator was referred to as Marcus Aurora Borealis Hanna, which elicited much applause. The speaker referred to Diogenes of old and said: "We have with us tonight the Diogenes of Marietta. A man whom we intend to send to the senate instead of M. A. Hanna. I take pleasure in introducing General Warner." He was greeted with wild applause and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen:—Have events proved we were wrong or right last year. The issues have not changed. The Chicago platform was right then and is right now.

"The Republican party while they are in favor of government by injunction, have not had the courage to declare it.

"All powers of government are either assumed or delegated. Under kings they are assumed and under republics they are delegated. The government of this country is divided into three branches, executive, legislative and judicial. Have the people delegated to the judicial branch the powers which they have assumed in recent years? The Democratic party will make no war upon the courts of justice, but stands for justice and equity to all men. The supreme court, of the United States, has the right to declare when the laws are right and when they are not, but who shall limit the powers of the courts? Is there to be no limitation to their power? Are they to be permitted to do as they like? The people themselves are the only persons who can limit the powers of the courts. The courts have, of late years, been assuming powers that were never intended they should. The right to a trial by jury has gone. William, the emperor of Germany, has no such power as the courts have assumed. There is only one power in all the world which possesses that which the courts seem to think belong to them, and he is the autocrat of Russia.

"We were right in making the criticism in the Chicago platform, and our position this year is much stronger than it was last. Have conditions so changed to make the money question less an issue than it was last year? They have not, and the silver question is today just as much an issue as it ever was. Things are moving along better now than they were three months ago, I will admit, and labor is more generally employed, but is labor now carried on at a higher level of wages? Wages have gone down in all the iron industries.

"No farmer can depend upon wheat going up. The wheat crop this year fell short 250,000,000 bushels of the usual amount needed to supply the wants of the people, but luckily the crop in this country was very good. The price of wheat will depend in a great measure upon the December crop in India and the Argentine."

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

The speaker then reached his pet hobby and said: "There is no general change in economic conditions. If you want to maintain staple prices you must have sufficient money supply. There is the root of the whole question. No people can prosper while their money is continually rising and prices are falling. Take the last half of the century from 1850 to 1873. During that time was there a general tendency of prices to fall? No, not then. Prices rose during that period from 15 to 20 per cent, and all this time gold was depreciating. In the last 23 years gold has practically doubled in value, and the price of property has been cut in two. That extends to all gold standard countries. The world is being plundered continually by rising money and falling prices. The times of the middle classes will come again. Rising money will sway any nation. I have nothing to say personally about anybody, but I do say the methods employed last year by Mark Hanna cannot be justified by any lover of his country. There was no chance for us to win our cause after the nomination and election of Mr. Cleveland in '92. The revolutionary army might as well have gone to Europe and got a traitor to lead its arms as for us to follow the leadership of Grover Cleveland. But we overthrew him at the last convention, and you can rely upon William J. Bryan as we once relied upon Jefferson and Jackson. He is a friend of the people.

"We have a candidate for governor who is a true man. I have labored with him in many places, and if he is elected I can vouch for him and he will give the state an honest and economical administration. We also want to elect our legislative ticket and thus show our condemnation of Hannaism."

There was a rush for the door, but what was left of the crowd managed to give three cheers and the meeting was over.

Miss Fanny Minor Suffered an Accident.

Miss Fannie Minor, while entering St. Aloysius church by a back way, fell down a flight of steps last evening about 7:30 o'clock and broke her left leg.

She was carried into the parsonage and Doctor Taylor was summoned. The fracture was reduced and the woman was taken to Wellsville in a cab to the home of her brother, Charles Minor.

Shortly after her arrival there it was decided to send her to a hospital, and she was taken to one in Cleveland on the midnight train. Doctor Taylor, Father Halligan and her brother accompanying her.

Miss Minor was employed in this city several years ago as housekeeper for Father Desmond, prior to the coming of Father Smythe. After the death of Father Desmond, she entered a St. Louis hospital and within a short time was made head nurse. She was visiting her brother when the accident happened.

MORE THAN A STORY

Was the Project to Build a Soap Factory.

THE ENGLISHMAN HAS COME

He Is Now In New York, and the Board of Trade Are Expecting to Hear Something From His Agent In the Very Near Future.

Several weeks ago the NEWS REVIEW announced that the board of trade had opened negotiations with the agent of a great English soap manufacturing concern, and there was a possibility that the plant would be located here. Nothing more was heard after the reply came from New York, which said the matter was under consideration, and even those who knew the particulars doubted that anything would come of it.

Members of the board now think differently. The Englishman has come to this country and is now in New York. Since his agent promised to investigate the advantages offered by this place, there is no reason to believe that he will not come. Something interesting is expected soon.

The company want to locate in this country, because the Dingley law has made it impossible to make soap for the the American market at a profit.

THE MISTAKES

Of Some Lives Are Many and Ofttimes Are They Made.

We refer to one of the numerous ones of the lower region sheet, when it yesterday announced, by imputation, that the officials of the Christian church are opposed to Professor O. S. Reed remaining in charge as pastor for another year, while the majority of the congregation are in favor of him. The official board of the Christian church took action in Professor Reed's case some time since. Ten voted in favor of Comrade Reed and three against him, and the minority, as per the lower region sheet, controls. For the enlightenment of this recorder of "ancient history," we will state that Professor Reed will serve the Christian church of East Liverpool for at least another year, by and through the consent and votes of a LARGE majority of the congregation, and a LARGER majority of the official board.

Further, the "recorder of ancient history" says: "Reverend Reed has been quoted as saying that he intends to continue in the capacity of pastor of the church, and that he will look to the congregation for his salary."

The NEWS REVIEW has it, from absolutely reliable authority, that Reverend Reed said nothing of the kind, and that the author of this yarn has been wrestling with the truth, and has no regard for his or her veracity.

GUITERAS GOING SOUTH AGAIN.

Given Leave of Absence to Determine Yellow Fever Cases.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—Provost G. C. Harrison of the university of Pennsylvania has received a telegram from Surgeon General Wyman at Washington saying that word had been received from the state health officer, the president of the board of health and mayor at Montgomery, Ala., asking that Dr. Guiteras may return to determine yellow fever cases in that state.

The provost answered by telegram that Dr. Guiteras had been given leave of absence and would return at once to Alabama.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—The fever situation has improved somewhat. New cases 43, deaths 2.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 22.—The state board of health reports 4 new cases at Clinton, 2 at Nitta Yuma, 5 at Edwards, 7 at Bay St. Louis and 5 at Cayuga. There was one death at Bay St. Louis.

MOBILE, Oct. 22.—Four new cases, three deaths and six recoveries were reported.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 22.—The board of health reports four new cases, making 14 in all, and no deaths. Since the report of the board there has been one death, that of P. W. McAdams, making two in all.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 22.—J. W. Weiss and J. L. Mitchell, two traveling men for Atlanta houses, were locked in the smoker of the southern train which left for Atlanta at Anniston. Passengers on trains are compelled to travel with windows shut, while armed guards stand at the doors of the coaches.

PROTEST FROM SPAIN.

Answer to United States Said to Object to Filibustering.

MADRID, Oct. 22.—At the meeting of the cabinet today, Senor Sagasta presiding, the ministers considered the draft of the answer of Spain to the note of the United States on the subject of Cuba delivered to the Spanish government by the United States minister, General Stewart L. Woodford, shortly after his arrival here. It is understood that the reply contains a formal protest against filibustering.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Senor de Lome, the Spanish minister at Washington, has been instructed to notify the American government that henceforth filibustering expeditions will be regarded as breaches of international law. Such, at any rate, is the substance of his instructions, though it is just possible that the form in which they will be carried into effect may modify their import."

"A very bad impression has been made here by the news from Havana that a majority of the important industrial, commercial, mining, railway and steamship enterprises in Cuba are being rapidly converted into foreign companies, chiefly American and English. It is feared that this may enable the companies to claim damages from Spain for losses during the war. Perhaps a further reason why they are seeking English and American protection is that Cuban capital fears the tyranny, disorder and throatcutting which will follow immediately on the proclamation of Cuban independence when the time comes for it."

MORE THAN A STORY

Was the Project to Build a Soap Factory.

THE ENGLISHMAN HAS COME

He Is Now In New York, and the Board of Trade Are Expecting to Hear Something From His Agent In the Very Near Future.

Several weeks ago the NEWS REVIEW announced that the board of trade had opened negotiations with the agent of a great English soap manufacturing concern, and there was a possibility that the plant would be located here. Nothing more was heard after the reply came from New York, which said the matter was under consideration, and even those who knew the particulars doubted that anything would come of it.

HIS HAND IN HOT PITCH

Ira Williams Was Frightfully Burned.

HE BECAME VERY MUCH EXCITED

And Thrust the Burning Member In a Bucket of Sand Making Wounds Which Cause Excruciating Pain—From Finger Tips to Wrist.

Ira Williams, who is interested in the stove mill in the lower part of the city, was the victim of a peculiar accident yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Williams was at work on what is known as a granite paper roof, having a pot of boiling pitch and another of sand. By an error he thrust his hand into the pitch, and the pain was so intense that he became very excited, and not knowing what to do put his hand in the sand. When he drew it out it was covered with sand and he was almost wild with pain.

A physician was called and dressed the wound, but it cannot yet be told whether Mr. Williams' hand will be permanently injured. The hand is burned from finger tips to wrist.

PROFESSOR REED

Does Not Agree With Fathers Kress and Graham.

"The whole theory of purgatory is based on a misconception of the design of punishment," said Professor Reed, in discussing the meeting at St. Aloysius, last night.

"It is unphilosophical as well as unscriptural," he continued. "I think I will talk on this matter next Sunday evening, and all Catholics are especially invited to the Christian church. I believe there is ample room for objection to statements made by Fathers Kress and Graham."

Professor Reed paid a high tribute to the scholarly attainments and earnestness of the gentlemen.

Strangers buying up antiquated stocks of merchandise which have turned gray with years, or shipping the unsalable stuff from foreign towns to palm off on the good people of East Liverpool as late productions.
